«Utica, N.Y.» The Executive Committee of the Central N. Y. State Anti-Slavery Society discussed the importance of having an agent on the ground "where all our leading men have enlisted in the third party enterprise." Abby Kelley suggested that the addressee might be induced to come as an agent. Sends the Liberty Press. Emphasizes the need of counteracting the Third Party politicians. Suggests that the addressee might come as an agent of the American Anti-Slavery Society or "connect yourself with us." The Central N. Y. State is entirely free from debt. It would be gratifying to have the addressee present at the Convention in New-York, N. Y.

Lincoln, Benjamin, 1733-1810; secretary of war. Ch C 3.31

To Hon. S. Holten, Boston.

[Philadelphia.] In writing to him, is renewing a long neglected correspondence. Believes the people still divided in their preferences for peace or war, many being governed by self interest. Congress is making every effort to reduce expenses. Can report no definite news from Europe as to the terms of the treaty. A.L.S. 3p. 12 1/2 x 8 in.

	To Caroline Weston	No.46

Deerfield, Mass.. The writer regrets that he cannot give all the assistance she may need in her labors in this region. Recommends Heath as "one of the most moral & respectable towns in this section of the country," with an interest in the subject of slavery. The writer is sending the "Franklin Mercury" with an account of the Anti-Slavery Society formed at Heath. Mentions by name several gentlemen who would be able to give the addressee information relative to the county. The writer is doubtful about the probable success of petitioning Congress.
